Your Custom Study Planner

This template Study Planner is a supplement to the UNSW Handbook and will assist you in making a smooth transition to the new calendar. If you are doing a dual degree, you may find it useful to refer to the 2018 and 2019 course offerings and prerequisite information contained in the Study Planner for each of the degrees that makes up your dual program. The full course list can be found at student3plus.unsw.edu.au.

Instructions

Step 1: Familiarise yourself with your degree and its requirements in the UNSW Handbook for the year in which you commenced your degree.

Step 2: Familiarise yourself with the contents of this document.

Step 3A: On Your Course List record which courses you will have completed by the end of 2017.

Step 3B: On Your Course List record which courses you have left to complete in your degree.

Step 4: Record your remaining courses for your degree in Your Study Plan, paying particular attention to prerequisite requirements and course availability in each term. The normal full-time study load remains eight courses a year in the new calendar. You may choose to enrol in three courses each term for a total of nine a year without overloading.

Step 5: Review Your Study Plan, save a copy and enrol for 2018.

The information in this guide is for advice only and you still need to enrol via the usual method. Course availability should be checked prior to each enrolment.
